Warp Frontier is an adventure game, with the player taking on the role of a scientist on a distant planet, who is researching a mysterious ancient artefact. The player's task is to find out about the history of the planet, with the artefact being a central part of the story. The player's own past is left unexplored and is told through flashbacks. InspirationThe game was partly inspired by the old game Atreus, which I enjoyed as a child. But like many of my games, Warp Frontier starts with a vague notion and grows organically from there, and I do not aim at creating a generic, or "same-as-all-others", point-and-click adventure. The game play of Warp Frontier is based on the point-and-click adventures of the 90's: the legendary Lucasarts titles The Secret of Monkey Island and Day of the Tentacle, but using a 4-person party. The reason behind that is that I can't have a solo player in a party of four, and I thought I would miss the humour of this type of game when I played it as a child. Feedback Regarding Idea Of Story As Reflection of the Space Traveller's PastMy initial idea was that the player take on the role of a man who was exploring the Solar System as a member of a space colony and was in command of the ship. I did not think of the character having a specific past, which was one reason for the flashbacks. When I realized that this would have meant that the player had certain specific traits to explain, and after I had an image of a man with "jaded" eyes, I decided it was best to keep it open for interpretation. I did not want to go into the question of what the "space traveller" did before, so the game allows for the question to remain unanswered.Convert VHS tape to DVD for personal use only. Heartbreaker is a single player storytelling experience using a strong narrative element and gorgeous hand painted visuals for a unique gaming experience. Heartbreaker is set in a post apocalyptic future following an event known as the interdimensional nuclear fallout (IDNF). Following the failure of the first IDNF, humanity has retreated into a closed society and suspended most of the human population on a prison planet called Nova Terra. The player takes the role of the protagonist "Vestra", a former soldier who has just escaped Nova Terra and is now lost on the hostile lands of Xania. During his journey to find his love, Vestra is drawn to a mysterious place called The Sleepers' Valley, where he discovers a device called a Heartbreak Defender. This mysterious device is capable of stopping the hearts of people from the human dimension and sends some of them to oblivion. The player can also form a special bond with the "EPIC-DATA", a strange AI that collects people's data through the Heartbreak Devices. Features: A story driven single player game, Heartbreaker is described as a narrative game, but it doesn't limit the player to a linear path. During the game the player can choose what to do, how to interact with the environment and what direction to go in, all of which will affect the storyline. In the gameplay aspect, the player will be presented with puzzles to solve. The puzzles will challenge the player's logic and good memory skills. In-game assets are hand painted, fully animated and highly detailed to add to the overall experience. In-game music and sound effects are all composed and performed by Robert Aubrey King. Epic, Strangeness and Torment - Three words that perfectly fit the style of the game. Using these words as keywords, the team strived to produce a game that is fun, engaging and immersive. Oh so, we've only scratched the surface! I hope you will take a closer look at Heartbreaker. This add-on contains the BR Blue livery for the Bo-Bo Class 20. - New Custom Livery with Passenger Coaches on the British Railways - Original design of the British Railways (BR) Class 20 Locomotives - More than 60 new Custom Parts System Requirements: DirectX® compatible video card, PC operating system, and Internet connection are required to access in-game features. iPad® compatible game will need iOS 5.1 or later to install add-on content and use features. Get ready to take the helm and drive on a BR Class 20 Loco! Award-winning Train Simulator add-on DLC offers a BR Blue livery for the historic Bo-Bo Class 20 locomotives. The 228 Class 20 Locomotives were the most prolific British freight locomotive designed after World War II. Built initially from 1957 to 1962, and then again from 1966 until 1968, the 228 locomotives in the Class were designed to haul freight, but were often pressed into service during the summer months on seaside specials. Known by their nickname "Choppers", a nickname derived from the distinctive "beating" sound they produced under load and resembling the sound of a helicopter, the Class 20s relatively low power output of 1,000 bhp saw many operate in pairs across the British rail network. This was also due to the poor visibility caused by their long nose, which saw the locomotives run almost exclusively cab first. This class of locomotives are most popular for their ability to haul heavy freight trains, allowing many to appear on television in the 1960s and 70s. The loco livery is just one aspect of the Class 20 locomotives, and has been meticulously researched and crafted. The BR Blue on the Loco will be accompanied by a host of custom parts including a full set of passenger coaches. Class 20 Engines The Class 20 was built by British Railways (BR) and consists of 252 locomotives - 228 from 1957 to 1962 and 24 from 1966 until 1968. They are numbered from 20001 to 20228 and were built for heavy freight duty.

World War II saw the Class 20s brought into service from the 1950s, with 228 built in 1957 and the remainder built between 1960 and 1968. They were designed to haul goods trains and are often incorrectly referred to as 'Class 30', as their original power was 1,000 bhp for both freight and passenger trains. They were

Alcohol Chocolate Cocktails Drinks Entrees Festivals & Special Events "Oh, this is ridiculous! Have I wandered into a fairy tale? In an enchanting space filled with gourmet treats and bubbling libations?" I thought to myself as I stared at the sign on the red brick building just as the sun was setting on the last day of May. Who was I to question this little piece of heaven? Little did I know I was about to embark on a lifetime of bad decisions. The town of Salem is a quaint little New England, but it is best known for its rowdy New Years Eve parties at the Coven's opening, and for being the home of one of the most infamous witch hunters of all time, Dr. Edward "Eddie" Post. Eddie was convicted of 12 counts of witchcraft in 1692 New England for his testimony in the Salem witch trials of which he was dubbed "the false witness." This was the same man who was evidently named in the 2011 book "Witchmourn" which referred to Eddie Post as a "real hero." In this book, George Carlin wrote this dialogue about the Salem witch hunts that sums it up "He achieved greatness in the Salem witch crisis? Sure. There probably were some witches; we all know that." The town's timing is truly perfect, as May is the month when the town is in the midst of the festival season. While the Coven's opening is a large draw to tourists, we do feel a little rushed as we clock in every day at 7:00am; a little too hectic for my taste. After all, it's hardly a weekend, and there's so much to do to even begin to experience this quaint, enchanting town. I understand that after a year in the business, we only are able to offer a day at the town with limited hours, however, I felt that our Coven Happy Hour was worth the time it takes to be here, and is planned to be open until 7:00pm, in order to fully experience our witchy charm. Major League Soccer's talks to host four games in Mexico have boiled down to one issue: whether the United States Soccer Federation will grant approval, the source said. Interest in the matches has grown as Major League Soccer and the Mexican Football Federation reach an agreement, which would allow the league to introduce franchises in the beleaguered domestic league. Another complication is that the Concacaf Champions League is run by U.S.-based MLS and the final four venues are in Canada. The new Concacaf Champions League would begin in August 2014. Mexico are host to a World Cup qualifying match between the United States and one of Central America's powerhouses next year, in Querétaro. The top-ranked Americans will be stationed in distant Vancouver and D.C. As part of a new CONCACAF expansion, the league has always had its eye on Mexico. Major League Soccer announced that it would extend an invitation to Mexico City franchise rather than Anaheim, which had also been discussed. "We're obviously going to be looking at this in more depth. When we've got the final series of talks, we'll have a complete discussion of the various options," MLS commissioner Don Garber said in an interview with the Los Angeles Times. heart is that it might create more traffic, new clients and opportunities for The Revolution to become more than just a soccer team. They want to create a successful organization with real world applications. That could help make soccer in Atlanta a truly global game.
