Happy gaming!Q: Shell script giving error while running ".script" I'm running a shell script that uses the "read" command to take input. When I run it, it gives me the following error: .script: line 14: read: command not found What should I do? A: You need to escape the spaces: .script \ Otherwise it's being interpreted as two separate commands: .script read And obviously, without the \, the would not be interpreted as a newline: .script See the bash manpage for more details. Assessment of surface stabilization of methyl- and ethyl-substituted azodicarbonamide by Fourier transform infrared spectroscopy and molecular dynamics simulations. Azodicarbonamide, an endocrine disrupter, is extensively used in the manufacture of various consumer and industrial products. In this study, in-situ FTIR spectroscopy was used to characterize the interaction of azodicarbonamide with germanosilica surfaces during adsorption under non-equilibrium conditions. It was found that azodicarbonamide molecules adsorb to the germanosilica surface via a hydrogen bonding interaction, and the adsorbed molecules are in a flat orientation relative to the surface. The methyl substitution of azodicarbonamide reduces the efficiency of hydrogen bonding relative to ethyl substitution. In the saturated regime, a minimal amount of azodicarbonamide is able to
