THIS year marks the third in a series of World Wide Wilderness Challenges, with the support of the Wilderness Society and the Koonibba Foundation. The Koonibba team will be visiting Koonibba Creek while you take part in the challenge. When: 8am, Saturday, October 22, 2018 Where: Koonibba Creek, 9km north of Jindabyne on the Jindabyne Valley Way.

The Challenge: None If you visit Koonibba Creek: We encourage you to kayak, walk or hike all or part of the way, as the creek is little more than a series of pools. There is a good trail along its length and an Aboriginal cultural path through the property. Look for Koonibba creeks, which are known for their rich blue waters. You can also try fishing, which is a popular pastime at Jindabyne Lakes. There are also some picnic spots along the way. Get your read-a-world report via email or subscribe to our newsletter. Participating in a World Wide Wilderness Challenge is an inspirational, fun and educational experience. It is about experiencing true wilderness and learning about some of Australia's oldest and smallest wilderness areas. The World Wide Wilderness Challenges are part of the Wilderness Foundation's 'Rescue the wild in your backyard' campaign. The foundation manages four Australia-wide international and 12 domestic conservation projects. These are all in vital biodiversity areas, so people and nature can continue to live in close harmony. These projects and the World Wide Wilderness Challenges are based on the belief that not much wilderness is left, so we need to stop what we are doing and 'rescue' it. Each year, participants nominate an area which is then visited and studied by the World Wide Wilderness Challenge team. The nominated area is used to inspire creativity in people, who then put their ideas to work. The project itself comes about after the team visits the nominated area. The team shares their story with other participants through guided walks and presentations, then writes a report that is available to
